

CPD waiver/ partial waiver application form

CPD requirement

All registrants, whether practising or non-practising, must ensure they meet the GCC's CPD requirements each year.

CPD is important as it is the mechanism by which registrants assure the GCC that they remain up to date, which is why we only rarely exempt registrants from the requirement.

What can I do if I haven't completed all or part of the CPD requirement by the end of the CPD year?

In certain circumstances the Registrar is permitted to waive all or part of a registrant's CPD requirement if exceptional circumstances have prevented you from doing so.

When might the Registrar use his power of waiver?

Ill health and bereavement are both generally acceptable. However, all applicants are considered on a case by case basis.

What is not considered as an exceptional circumstance?

The following lists gives details of some circumstances that are not generally considered to be exceptional and for which CPD is unlikely to be waived:

- Work pressure
- Short-term problems or illness
- Personal disruptions that are not serious, which includes travel, holidays etc.
- Financial problems
- Retirement
- Maternity (unless health problems are also present)
- Paternity
- Child care
- Disciplinary matters
- Cancellation of a CPD event.

How do I apply for waiver of my CPD?

Full waiver – if you have not been able to complete any of your CPD requirements, you should complete and return this application form along with evidence of your exceptional circumstances to support your application.

Partial waiver – if you have been able to complete some, but not all of your CPD requirement, you must complete this application form, provide us with evidence of your exceptional circumstances and also a completed CPD record summary giving the CPD you have completed. This is because the Registrar will need to know how many hours he is being asked to waive.

What form of evidence is acceptable?

The following table gives details of some form of evidence that are likely to be acceptable. In some circumstances that Registrar may ask to see evidence of a specific course that you booked.

Circumstances	Evidence which is likely to be acceptable
Long term illness	An original medical report or letter from the medical practitioner responsible for your care, confirming the nature of the illness, date you became ill and also when you may be able to complete undertake CPD and fill in your paperwork again.
Personal circumstances	An original medical report along the lines above. Certified copy of Death certificate in case of bereavement.
Family illness	An original medical certificate or letter from the medical practitioner responsible for the care of the patient, confirming the nature of the family illness.
