| Jonathan Whitlock 03466 April 2016 | Patient | The Allegations found proved against Mr Whitlock relate to two patients referred to here as Patients A and B.
Patient A
At a treatment session between mid February and mid March 2015, while Patient A was lying on her back on the treatment table, fully clothed with her knees raised, Mr Whitlock:
- rested his fingers between her legs in the area of the labia
- deliberately touched or allowed his fingers to touch the area of her labia.

Mr Whitlock’s actions individually and/or taken together, were:
- not justified as part of the course of treatment
- without the consent of Patient A
- inappropriate
- unprofessional
- sexually motivated.
At a treatment session on or about 18 March 2015 while Patient A was lying on her front on the treatment table, fully clothed with Mr Whitlock standing at her left side, Mr Whitlock:
- stroked her buttock with his fingers
- deliberately touched or allowed his fingers to touch the area between her legs.
- while carrying out treatment around her shoulder he stood at her left shoulder with his penis pressed against her shoulder; and at the time of doing so his penis was erect or semi-erect.

These actions, as above, individually and/or taken together, were:
Finding of Unacceptable Professional Conduct
Sanction: Removal from the register |
At a treatment session on or about 18 March 2015 when Patient A was about to use the walking machine, Mr Whitlock squeezed Patient A's hand and said 'enjoy it'. This conduct was:

- inappropriate
- unprofessional
- sexually motivated

Patient B

Between 24 August 2012 and 17 September 2012 Mr Whitlock examined and/or treated Patient B. At the first appointment, Mr Whitlock rolled down Patient B’s knickers. He repeated this on three other occasions.

At a treatment session on or about 17 September 2012, while Patient B was lying on her front on the treatment table, Mr Whitlock:

- massaged Patient B’s left buttock
- deliberately rubbed between her legs in the area of her labia and/or pubic region.

This conduct was:

- not justified as part of a course of treatment
- without the consent of Patient B
- inappropriate
- unprofessional
- sexually motivated.

On or about 24 August 2012, Mr Whitlock procured a series of x-ray exposures of Patient B and did not adequately record the findings of each x-ray.

| Donald Paul Murray 00648 January 2016            | Patient             | On or about 27 February 2012, Patient A consulted Mr Murray complaining of shoulder and neck pain. Thereafter, Mr Murray treated Patient A at a number of treatment sessions between February and May 2012.
Mr Murray failed to make an adequate initial assessment of Patient A in that he failed to record the results of adequate orthopaedic testing.
Mr Murray failed to establish a working diagnosis or rationale for care. As a result, the treatment Mr Murray gave to Patient A was not justified.
In or about April 2012 Patient A reported worsening symptoms including numbness in the legs and severe pain. Thereafter, Mr Murray failed to carry out an adequate re-assessment of Patient A. Mr Murray also failed to advise Patient A promptly to seek medical advice. | Finding of Unacceptable Professional Conduct
